A small playhouse with a play panel

Ben is one of the four playhouses in the Basic series. This model has a triangular design with partially open sides, of which one is equipped with a play panel. Do you want a more traditional and square design? Then have a look at our LB089 Beth playhouse.

The play panel invites role plays such as shopkeeper, where mud pies can be sold over the counter. But the panel also has a movable part in the form of an abacus. This can be used as a part of the game, while at the same time exercising children's sense of numbers and fine motor skills.

The fine motor skills are especially important to stimulate for children to be able to make small precise movements with, for example, their hands. If they improve this, then it will be much easier to hold and control tools such as a pen, which is an advantage when they need to learn to write.

The playhouses are made in an optimised design that gives the children great play value and at the same time has a minimal area requirement. This makes the playhouses easy to incorporate into small outdoor spaces, just like they easily fit into a playground with big play systems. Additionally the prices are very competitive, as fewer materials are used.

Why buy LEDON Basic?

- All the basic elements required for a good-quality, low-priced playground
- Compact towers that require a minimum of space.
- The systems are available in a wide range of variants to meet all needs.
