Fen provides multiple play experiences on a limited area

Fen is one of the smaller LEDON Explore models, and is therefore suitable for playgrounds where space is limited. The tower is designed to stimulate children's motor, linguistic and social development. The rope ladder provides access to the upper level, which is 90 cm high, from where it is possible to whizz down the slide. The system is suitable for children from about three years of age.

A ground plan full of surprises

At ground level, there are several activities that will keep children busy, for example the treasure chest and number panel. The treasure chest stimulates language and fine motor skills when children need to examine whether the key opens the treasure chest, while the number panel with the large holes helps to develop children's number sense, and it is also possible to crawl through the holes. Behind the two side panels is a den where secrets and other tales can be told.
